

!!+[OffiCial@!]* Waterford v Clare Live STreams All-Ireland MHC final - June 28, 2025

A titanic clash awaits at the All-Ireland Minor Hurling Championship final as Waterford and Clare prepare to battle for national glory. Two teams that have lit up the 2024 minor season with thrilling performances now meet in what promises to be a gripping showdown of youth, talent, and determination. With both counties eager to claim the coveted title, this final offers a glimpse into the bright future of Irish hurling.

WATCH NOW

Waterford arrive at the decider with growing confidence. Often regarded as underdogs earlier in the season, the Déise minors have captured the imagination of fans with their spirited displays. Their semi-final victory was a masterclass in resilience and teamwork, overturning early setbacks with sharp forward play and solid defending. Their full-back line has been particularly impressive, soaking up pressure and launching counter-attacks with precision.

Clare, on the other hand, have looked like a team on a mission from the start. Their journey through the Munster championship was marked by intensity, tactical discipline, and some standout individual performances. Their forward unit, known for its scoring potency, will be a key threat. Clare's ability to control the tempo in midfield and dominate aerial battles has made them one of the most complete teams in the competition.

As the two sides prepare to meet, several key battles stand out. Waterford's defence will need to be at their sharpest to contain Clare's pace and accuracy up front, while Clare's midfield will have to contend with Waterford's dynamic runners and quick distribution. Tactical flexibility, discipline under pressure, and execution of set pieces will likely be the deciding factors in what should be a tightly contested affair.

This final is more than a match—it's a celebration of the talent and commitment of two counties who have invested heavily in their underage structures. Both teams have shown immense promise, and the players on display are certain to be names we'll hear more of in the years to come.